

CRITERIA AS A STARTING POINT FOR GOOD FEEDBACK

Some general criteria for academic writing

A good assignment

- demonstrate obvious independence
- contains use (not just summary) of knowledge
- gives reasons for all choices made
- focuses
- meets the requirements of the academic regulations
- contains reasoned arguments
- includes an academically based problem statement
- uses relevant and precise concepts and methods
- relates to its own methods
- presents well-considered, transparent analyses, discussions and results
- uses relevant literature
- answers the problem statement
- takes in to account possible objections to the conclusion
- has a clear logical structure
- metacommunicates
- is written in a clear, correct and academic language

Additional discipline-specific criteria for the assignment you are about to write

(write these here)